City fires OC Transpo chief

► No reason given ► Mercier to receive some $260K in severance

Alain Mercier was fired from his job as general manager of OC Transpo Wednesday.

City manager Kent Kirkpatrick made the decision and informed Mercier that he was no longer needed at OC Transpo on Wednesday morning, said Transit Commission chair Diane Deans.

Mercier was given a compensation package worth approximately $260,000, Deans said.

Kirkpatrick announced the change after city councillors discussed the issue in camera over the lunch hour.

Former general manager of Public Works John Manconi is now the general manager of OC Transpo.

"It's important to highlight that John (Manconi) has succeeded before in leading a large organizational renewal, including rebuilding a senior management team, restoring front-line morale, building and maintaining an effective working relationship with a union and championing a client-service focus in the workforce," said Kirkpatrick.

No reason was given for why Mercier was fired.

Mercier became the general manager of OC Transpo in January 2007. He oversaw many changes to the public-transportation system, most recently the Network Optimization Plan, which saw $20 million cut from the system in September and about $5.5 million put back in January of this year.

The optimization scheme was unpopular with passengers.

Amalgamated Transit Union Local 279 president Garry Queale said the firing is "a big morale booster" for the union's front-line members.

"Over the past few years that Mr. Mercier was here, a lot of the membership directed the morale problems, unfortunately, at Alain Mercier," he said, "and with him being out of the picture, Mr. Manconi can come in and right the ship."

Queale said he is not very famil-

"It's unfortunate when people get fired, but I think it's a step in the right direction," he said.

Man tells of Tunisian terror

- University of Ottawa grad says he was beaten by police in north African country
- Recovering from facial injuries he says were caused after an altercation at traffic stop

JOE LOFARO
@METRONEWS.CA

A Canadian citizen says he was beaten by police officers in Tunisia last Wednesday and wants the Canadian government to intervene in an investigation as he waits for consular help in the capital, Tunis.

Walid Goudria, 30, a University of Ottawa graduate, said he returned to his native Tunisia after mass anti-government protests swept the country early last year.

A week ago he and his cousin, Adel Samoudi had an altercation with a group of police officers at a traffic stop, he said Wednesday when reached by telephone. When the cops started being verbally abusive and using "demeaning" language, Goudria said he recorded the incident with his iPhone.

"They did not like the fact that I recorded their misbehaviour and they wanted to take the phone from me," said Goudria from his home in Sfax, about 270 kilometres from southeast of Tunis.

That's when the officers allegedly punched him repeatedly in the stomach and face and one officer kicked him the eye with his boot.

Goudria said he and Samoudi were driven to a police station where they were beaten again until a head officer intervened. Goudria is recovering from his injuries at home.

"Three fractures: one

► A family member of Walid Goudria took these pictures of his face the morning after his alleged assault last week.

under the eye, the sinus, the nose, and I have my back bruised" he said. "Majorly, it's the face that hurts."

The Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade said it is verifying reports of a Canadian citizen assaulted in Tunisia.

"Canadian consular officials in Tunis stand ready to provide consular assistance," said Aliya Mawani, a spokesperson for DFAIT.

Goudria said the Canadian embassy couldn't identify him over the phone because he left his identification and passport in Tunis, but now that he is feeling better, he will retrieve the documents Thursday. He hopes the Canadian government can protect him.

Goudria said Canada's involvement could pressure Tunisian authorities to investigate the matter and deter police from retaliating.

"Just in case things go wrong here it would be nice to feel backed up by Canada," he said. "If they show that they're watching this case ... people will back off."

Crash claims three lives

A father and son from Orleans and a woman from Mountain Grove were killed when their vans collided with each other on Highway 7 near Perth Wednesday.

The fatal collision occurred near Maberly and Sharbot Lake at approximately 7:25 a.m.

OPP said the driver of the westbound van, John

Duffy, 47, and his son, Thomas Duffy, 16, were pronounced dead at the scene. The driver of the eastbound van, Karen Thompson, 39, was also pronounced dead at the scene.

Two passengers who were travelling with Duffy and his son — a 53-year-old man and a 10-year-old boy — were transported by ambulance to the Perth hospital with serious injuries. OPP said the 10-year-old was later transported to the Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario. The identities of the passengers haven't been released.

OPP said the westbound vehicle lost control and was struck by the eastbound vehicle.

Family of dead cyclist thanks police, paramedics

The family of a 32-year-old Ottawa cyclist who died in hospital Sunday after he was struck by a vehicle nearly three weeks ago, released a statement to police Wednesday.

Nathan Anderson was hit by an alleged drunk driver on Carling Avenue on Feb. 2.

"Our gratitude goes out to all the police officers and emergency services personnel who were so close and acted so quickly that they managed to get Nathan to the trauma unit with his heart still beating," the family said in the statement.

Glen Carkner, 44, has been charged in Anderson's death. ● JOE LOFARO

Major projects OK'd at mega-meeting

► Milestone city-council meeting sees approval of Lansdowne Park reports, stricter smoking ban, water rate hike and double-A baseball at Ottawa Stadium

City councillors approved a raft of major projects and plans on Wednesday, including a water rate hike, a deal to bring double-A baseball to Ottawa, a stricter smoking ban and key steps in the Lansdowne Park project.

Councillors said yes to boosting water rates by 74 per cent over the next decade, with an almost immediate six per cent jump. The initial hit will up the average bill to about $668 a year from $366.

Smoke signal

► Bylaw officers will begin laying fines on July 2 for smoking on restaurant and bar patios and on city property, in parks and on beaches, after an education campaign and a warning period.

A deal to lease the Ottawa Stadium to Beacon Sports Capital Partners, on condition they bring a double-A baseball team affiliated with a major-league team for the 2013 season, also got the green light. The name of the team that will be moved from the U.S. to Ottawa has been a closely guarded secret, but should be revealed in the coming weeks, said Coun. Rick Chiarelli, a proponent of pro ball in Ottawa.

A ban on smoking on restaurant and bar patios, and on city property, parks and beaches, was also approved with little dissent.

Finally, councillors approved several reports on the redevelopment of Lansdowne, including a plan for traffic management in the Glebe, the lease and sale of air rights for the new buildings and program planning.

Shave. For a Cure

As a charity event, this is shear genius

Three Ottawa city councillors are planning to shave their pates at the University of Ottawa's Shave for a Cure event on Friday. Shad Qadri, Keith Egli and Tim Tierney will go under the razor to raise money for Smiling Over Sickness, which helps volunteers contribute to the lives of children who have cancer. The charity is run by the University of Ottawa faculty of medicine, and Shave for a Cure is an annual benefit. The shaving takes place at 7 p.m. at the J. Benson Cartage Centre in Lansdowne Park.

Job website not working

► Feds mum on why job-search site is undergoing security upgrades

@METRONWS.CA

The federal government employment website workingincanada.gc.ca has been offline all week with a notice telling job seekers it is "temporarily unavailable due to technical difficulties."

A spokesperson for Human Resources and Skills

Development Canada said it is "currently undergoing security upgrades" and did not answer whether those upgrades were planned or unplanned, or if the job bank was the target of hacking.

"Job Bank is committed to ensuring that job posting information is secure, accurate, and timely to support Canadians in their search for employment," the spokesperson wrote in an email to Metro on Monday.

On Monday, the spokesperson said the website was expected to be working in the next couple of days.

"I apologize."

One of Canada's most reviled sex offenders stood in court Wednesday and expressed his deep remorse for sexual abuse that shattered the hockey world.

"I stand before you with regret," former junior hockey coach Graham James said at his sentencing hearing in Winnipeg.

"I apologize to the Canadian hockey public, whose interest in the national game should be found in celebration.

"I apologize to the institution of hockey ... to the many good people who

James apologized to the players he coached and their families.

"I apologize to the parents and the families of those most personally affected.... I abused the trust you put in me."

But he saved the most direct apology for last.

"Finally, and most importantly, I apologize to Theoren Fleury and to Todd Holt, against whom I have offended.

"I wanted the best for you but I did not give you my best," he said.

"My actions forfeited our friendship."

James, 59, pleaded guilty in December to sexually abusing Fleury and Holt when they played for him in the 1980s and '90s.

The sentencing decision was reserved.

One of the largest tourist draws in Niagara Falls may not be open this year.

The Niagara Parks Commission said Wednesday it has awarded a 30-year deal for boat-tour operations in the Niagara Gorge to

Bin Laden rivals
feared by CSIS

Just hours after U.S. forces killed Osama bin Laden, Canada's spy agency predicted Islamic extremism would live on despite the al-Qaida leader's death.

A newly released assessment by the Canadian Security Intelligence Service says Bin Laden — though very important — was not the only ideologue advocating war between Islam and the West.

It suggests groups inspired by the al-Qaida message might carry out attacks independently of the terrorist network.

Bin Laden was buried at sea last May after a covert U.S. team stormed a compound in Pakistan and killed him.

The CSIS assessment was obtained under the Access to Information Act.

Clashes between Afghan troops and protesters angry over the burning of Muslim holy books at a U.S. military base left at least seven people dead and dozens wounded Wednesday as anger spread, despite U.S. apologies over what it said was a mistake.

The demonstrations across four eastern provinces illustrated the intensity of Afghans' anger at what they saw as foreign forces flouting their laws and insulting their culture.

The violence was also a reminder of how easily Afghan-U.S. relations can deteriorate, as the two countries work to forge a long-term partnership ahead of the withdrawal of foreign forces in 2014.

The unrest started Tuesday when Afghan workers at the main American military base, Bagram Air Field, saw soldiers dumping books in a pit where garbage is burned and noticed Qur'ans and other religious material among the trash.

Mubarak's fate to be decided in June

An Egyptian judge on Wednesday set June 2 as the date for the verdict and sentencing in the trial of ousted President Hosni Mubarak, which could put the man who spent nearly 30 years as one of the Arab world's key strongmen on death row.

Mubarak is accused of complicity in the killing of protesters during the 18-day popular uprising that pushed him from power in February of last year. More than 800 people were killed during the uprising, many of them demonstrators shot dead by security forces.

A guilty verdict would make Mubarak the first leader ousted during the Arab Spring uprisings to face legal punishment by his own people.

A ruling of not guilty — a distinct possibility — could set off new a new round of unrest.

Egyptians have closely followed the seven-month-long case, and many accuse the council of ruling army generals who took power when Mubarak stepped down of dragging out the proceedings.

Shelling in Syria kills two Western journalists

- Deaths condemned globally, situation to be assessed
- Foreign media being smuggled into country illegally

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syrian gunners pounded an opposition stronghold where the last dispatches from a veteran American-born war correspondent chronicled the suffering of civilians caught in the relentless shelling. An intense morning barrage killed her and a French photojournalist — two of 74 deaths reported Wednesday in Syria.

"I watched a little baby die today," Marie Colvin told the BBC on Tuesday from the embattled city of Homs. "Absolutely horrific, a two-year-old child had been hit," added Colvin, a veteran foreign correspondent for Britain's Sunday Times.

Colvin, 56, and photographer Remi Ochlik, 28, were among a group of journalists who had crossed into Syria and were sharing accommodations with activists, raising speculation that government forces targeted the makeshift media centre, although opposition groups had previously described the shelling as indiscriminate. At least two other Western journalists — French reporter Edith Bouvier of Le Figaro and British photographer Paul Conroy of the Sunday Times — were wounded.

Activist Omar Shaker said the journalists were killed when several rockets hit a garden of the house in the besieged neighbourhood of Baba Amr at around 10 a.m.

Hundreds of people have died in weeks of siege-style attacks on Homs that have come to symbolize the desperation and defiance of the 11-month-old uprising against President Bashar Assad. The bloodshed brought some of the most galvanizing calls for the end of Assad's rule.

"That's enough now. The regime must go," said French President Nicolas Sarkozy. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Divers searching the capsized Costa Concordia cruise ship off a Tuscan island found eight bodies Wednesday on one of the passenger decks, including that of a missing 5-year-old Italian girl, authorities said. Italy's national civil protection agency said three of the bodies were recovered a few hours after being spotted by divers. It said they are those of a woman, a girl and a man. 49 KILLED IN RUSH-HOUR ARGENTINA TRAIN ACCIDENT

The first two cars were packed so tightly for the morning rush that people were sandwiched between bicycles and the few seats.

This train didn't lurch, though. It had trouble stopping, overshooting platforms and missing at least one station entirely. It didn't come to a halt until it had slammed into a metal barrier at Buenos Aires' Once station. With more than 1,200 people on board, the momentum was devastating. Forty-nine people were killed and 600 were injured. The cause has not been determined, but many pointed to a deteriorating rail system. The dead included 48 adults and one child, and 461 were hospitalized, Transportation Secretary J.P. Schiavi said.

LAWMAKER STANDS BY GIRL-SCOUT CRITICISM

Undaunted by ridicule from the leader of his own party, an Indiana lawmaker is standing by his allegations that the Girl Scouts is a radical organization that promotes abortions and homosexuality.

The Scouts and Planned Parenthood have dismissed Rep. Bob Morris' comments as absurd, as did Brian Bosma, the Republican Speaker of Indiana's House of Representatives. But Morris, also a Republican, told The Associated Press his critics need to do more research into the 100-year-old organization.

"My family and I took a view and we're sticking by it," Morris said Tuesday, adding that his daughters were joining an alternative group for young girls run by conservative Christians. "My girls are no longer Girl Scouts. They're now going to join American Heritage Girls." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Romney, Santorum running virtual dead heat in key states

► But national polls say staunch social conservative Rick Santorum is front-runner in presidential race

It's been almost a month since the last Republican presidential debate, and once again the race for the party's nomination is vastly different than it was when Mitt Romney efficiently put the boots to his biggest threat, Newt Gingrich, during a Florida faceoff.

Romney's no longer the front-runner in national polls.

Gingrich's support has all but evaporated.

Ron Paul is Romney's new best friend.

And Rick Santorum, with his fierce social conservatism, sits atop the polls nationally while running neck-and-neck with Romney in the crucial states of Arizona and Michigan.

► Bud Lindsay hands out bumper stickers during a campaign stop for Republican presidential candidate Rick Santorum.

Unsurprisingly, Santorum was on the hot seat for the 20th Republican presidential debate hosted by CNN in Arizona on Wednesday.

It marked the first time he was centre stage for a debate, and he was expected to come under attack by his rivals, particularly Romney and Paul, who have reportedly formed a behind-the-scenes alliance to look out for one another on the campaign trail and beyond.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

He said what?

- On the campaign trail Santorum has come out against pre-natal testing, saying it leads to abortions.
- He's also on the record in 2008 as saying birth control poses a threat to the nation, that sex is only meant for the purpose of procreation and that "Satan has his sights on the United States of America."
- Meanwhile, Romney recently attacked the Obama administration saying it has "fought against religion" and sought to substitute a "secular" agenda for one grounded in faith.
- Religious liberty has been a popular topic lately because of the Obama administration's mandate that insurance companies provide free birth control to women.

EU refers copyright treaty to high court

► Proponents say the agreement is needed to harmonize global standards and protect content producers' rights

The European Commission, facing opposition in city streets, on the Internet and in the halls of parliament, has suspended efforts to ratify a new international anti-counterfeiting agreement, and instead will refer it to Europe's highest court to see whether it violates any fundamental EU rights.

EU Trade Commissioner Karel De Gucht asserted Wednesday that an opinion from the European Court of Justice would clear away the fog of misinformation surrounding the Anti-Counterfeiting Trade Agreement, known as ACTA.

"This debate must be based upon facts and not upon the misinformation or rumour that has dominated social media sites and blogs in recent weeks," De Gucht told reporters in Brussels.

The decision appeared to reflect recognition by European Union officials of the political obstacles. Protests against the agreement were staged earlier this month in several European capitals by critics who say the agreement would stifle free speech and access to information.

The hacking group known as Anonymous claimed responsibility last week for a new series of hacks against the U.S. Federal Trade Commission and consumer-rights websites. The sites were replaced with a violent German-language video satirizing ACTA.

Recovery expectations low after Greek bailout

KOSTAS TSIRONIS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greece on Wednesday insisted a new 130-billion-euro bailout deal will "bind" it to the euro, but again lowered expectations of recovery as it faced skeptical world markets, continued protests and another downgrade of its debt deeper into junk status.

As the government scrambled to push new austerity measures, Finance Minister Evangelos Venizelos said the new rescue package approved by eurozone countries would shield Greece from default.

"The agreement is of historic importance, because it binds Greece to the euro," Venizelos told private Mega television.

"It was not only the approval of the 130 billion euros in additional support for Greece. But this also comes with a European commitment ... of support for as long as is necessary for Greece to return to the markets."

He added: "This is a decisive and irreversible action by our partners: Greece is a member of the euro and will remain a member of the euro and there is no issue of bankruptcy, there is no issue of the country's financial collapse."

Earlier, around 6,000 protesters chanting "EU out, IMF out!" marched through central Athens in a peaceful rally against the new austerity measures.

Eurozone countries on Tuesday approved the new bailout deal, and a 107-billion-euro debt writedown by banks and other private holders of Greek bonds.

In response, Fitch downgraded Greece's credit rating further into junk status, while world markets appeared nervous at the prospects of forcing through new austerity measures in a country stuck in recession for a fifth year and with unemployment topping 20 per cent. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Honda recalls Odyssey vans in Canada

Honda is recalling 2,790 Honda Odyssey vans in Canada as part of a larger recall because the rear doors can fall on people unexpectedly — and have on at least two occasions in the U.S.

The problem affects minivans from the 2008 and 2009 model years that have power lift gates.

The carmaker is recalling nearly 46,000 Odyssey minivans in the United States.

The U.S. National Highway Traffic Safety Administration says on its website that gas can leak out of the struts that support the lift gates and the doors could close unexpectedly, increasing the risk of injury.

Honda says the problem has caused two minor injuries and that the company will replace both power liftgate struts for free.

The company says it will send letters to van owners next month with instructions about the recall.

Canadians expect to work past age 66: Poll

► Nearly half of respondents to Sun Life survey said they are worried about having debt in retirement

As Canadians live longer and face tougher financial choices in their golden years, fewer than a third of respondents in a recent survey said they plan to be fully retired by 66.

Sun Life Financial's annual Unretirement Index poll, released early Wednesday, found that only about three in 10 Canadians surveyed said they plan full retirement at that age.

And the average expected age of retirement now hovers at 68 — up from 66 just last year.

"That's a fairly short space of time for an attitude change of that degree," said Kevin Dougherty, president of Sun Life Financial Canada.

The poll results from Canada's third-biggest insurance company reflect what other public opinion surveys have shown for a while — that the concept of Freedom 55 is a thing of the past.

"These results are not surprising given the current economic volatility, increasing consumer debt loads, rising health-care costs, longer life expectancy and lack of planning. We're also finding that some Canadians believe they'll have to work longer to be able to pay for basic living expenses," said Dougherty.

BRACE YOURSELF TWITTERSPHERE, THERE'S A NEW TWIT IN TOWN

HE SAYS ...

JOHN MAZEROLLE
METRO

As someone who considers himself on the cutting edge of technology, I recently began using a website known as Twitter. Have you heard of it?

I've spent my entire life missing out completely on trends — MySpace, The Thong Song, OxyContin — so my late arrival to the still-flourishing site has been a real revelation (the good kind, not the end-times, Santorum kind).

Well, my stars. Twitter is like a million sites combined!

It's a sports site that lets me learn about false hockey trades from teenagers who have no higher goal in life than to pose as Bob McKenzie.

It's a journalism site that allows me to read a breaking news headline 87 times in rapid succession.

It's an entertainment site that has me waiting on pins and needles for that Charlie Sheen pocket tweet which will let me know once and for all that he has collapsed and died.

And it's a community. The site is positively packed with tweeters who will take the time out of their busy day to insult strangers they disagree with when they could have simply moved on. It's rare to see people go the extra mile like that.

I myself have about 50 followers as I write this and — here's the exciting part

"I myself have about 50 followers as I write this and, here's the exciting part, 43 of them I have never met before because they are too busy with their adult entertainment business."

— 43 of them I have never met before because they are too busy with their adult-entertainment business. As soon as I joined, I was swarmed with new friends with names like Sexy McXXX and Sarah TryMyWebsite!, which I assume is Polish.

With its intrinsic goal of adding as many followers as possible, Twitter is a bit of a drug. The notifications button on Facebook is only a mild buzz compared to the straight-heroin injection of getting new Twitter followers.

I never dream about work, but the first day I started using Twitter I dreamt about it. Specifically, I dreamt I was super-excited because Lenny from The Simpsons followed me.

Here's the honest truth: I find the site oddly intimidating. Because, unlike Facebook, which pushes everyone toward a sort of echo-chamber conformity, Twitter is really whatever you make it.

It can be a huge knowledge resource, an insight into the famous and powerful, and a promotional tool. Or it can be a site that you use for cheap factoids, a reality-TV buzz and to avoid working.

So will I be a Twitterati or just a Twit? I'll be following myself with interest.

Experts discover 'water world'

SPACE. For years, water worlds have been the stuff of space sci-fi; now they're reality. Experts have revealed that the planet GJ1214b is a new classification of celestial body: a mix of water and high temperatures that could help host alien life. Other planetary types are: rocky (Earth), gas (Jupiter) and ice (Uranus). ● MWN

40

GJ1214b is 40 light years from Earth. It's believed GJ1214b formed farther out from its star, where water ice was plentiful, and migrated inward early in the system's history, thus passing through the star's "habitable zone."

Telescope helps clear the haze

DISCOVERY. Analysis of the watery planet in 2010 suggested that it was simply covered by a "haze," similar to that surrounding Saturn's moon Titan. But the latest results from NASA's Hubble Space Telescope show that it more likely has a thick atmosphere of water vapour. This "super-Earth" was first discovered in 2009. ● MWN

Not only seen in the movies

For a while, they called it "Kevin" after actor Kevin Costner, who starred in the 1995 flick Waterworld.

The name didn't stick, even in the mind of Zachory Berta, the Harvard University grad student who discovered the planet. "Planet Kevin" is called GJ1214b. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

"GJ1214b is like no planet we know of. A huge fraction of its mass is made up of water."

ZACHORY BERTA

GJ1214b facts

► Planet of hot, hot water. It orbits a red-dwarf star at a distance of just two million kilometres, meaning temperatures on the planet are above 200 C.

► 'Super Earth.' It's about 2.7 times the Earth's diameter and almost seven times its weight.

Adele caps a momentous year, Ed Sheeran breaks out at UK music's Brit Awards

Hip hop music from A to Z

► Local rapper working the biz from every direction ► Check out Atherton at Babylon tonight

BACKSTAGE PASS

JEN TRAPLIN
METRO OTTAWA

In order to make it in the music industry these days, you have to be willing and able to multi-task.

It's a skill that Ottawa hip hop artist Devin Atherton has been refining for years.

Operating under the name Vinyl Tap Ent., which he calls an "everything umbrella," Atherton has been able to develop his music and business from all angles.

"I'll call Vinyl Tap a label when I'm putting out a record, it's a promotions company when I'm putting on a show, I'll call it a magazine when I'm doing an interview," he explains.

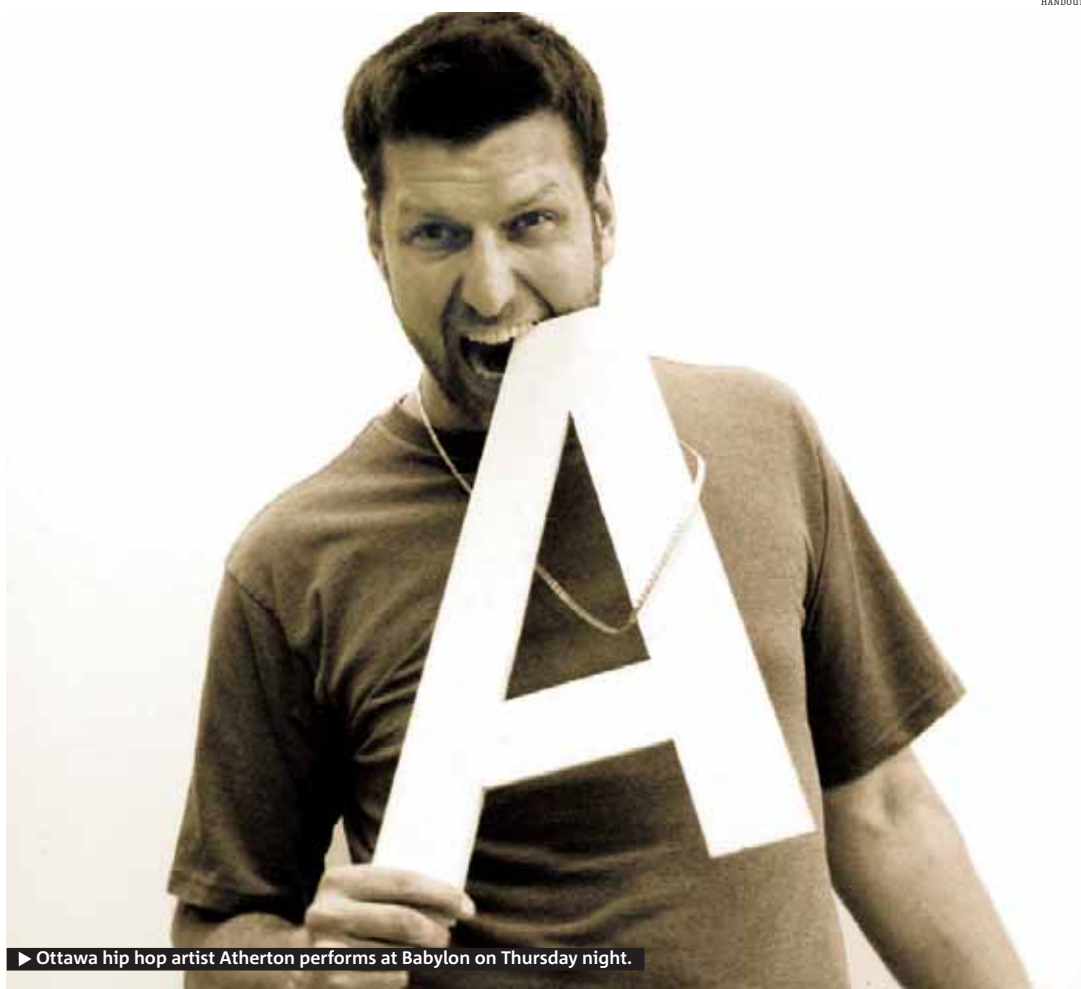

"It's really a beast that can be transformed into whatever shape I chose."

He treats his music the same way, adapting it to fit a fickle and ever-changing industry.

Details

When is the show?

► Event: Check out Atherton with Bars and Tone, Nakiem and DJ So Nice at Babylon Nightclub (317 Bank St.) on Thursday. Tickets are just $7 at the door. Doors open at 8 p.m.

► Ottawa hip hop artist Atherton performs at Babylon on Thursday night.

"With the way the music industry is going right now, no one is really making money off record sales, but there seems to be a nice little chunk of dough in the publishing and licensing industry," he says of the industry.

With that in mind, Atherton is staying away from samples on his upcoming record, No Threat, and is making entirely original beats in the hope he can eventually license his songs to various shows or independent films.

After spending time living in Toronto and Montreal, Atherton says he's happy to be back in Ottawa, a music scene he compares to doing some shopping at Winners or Value Village.

"People like going to those stores because you kind of have to sift through things," he says. "But you always find that amazing pair of jeans."

Jill Hennessy pulling for Plummer

The Canadian Press has been asking entertainment personalities to share their thoughts on Sunday's Academy Awards. Today, Canadian actress Jill Hennessy talks about her favourite film of the year and the fellow Canuck she's rooting for.

"I loved The Descendants, I think Alexander Payne is just a brilliant writer/director and that film is just so easy to relate She's hoping to see Canadian thespian Christopher Plummer win the best supporting actor Oscar for his role in Beginners. Plummer plays a dying widower who reveals to his son (Ewan McGregor) that he's gay.

"He deserves it, I've only seen scenes from that film but he's glorious and in a way I've never seen him," Hennessy says.

Aniston's escape

SCENE@METRONews.ca
METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

Jennifer Aniston's character in Wanderlust runs away from the modern life she and her husband (played by Paul Rudd) share to live in a Utopian, free-love commune in rural Georgia, and the actress admits the impulse to disappear isn't all that unfamiliar.

"Every day, yes," she says of feeling that way. "I mean, for me, going to Clarksville [Georgia] and shooting this movie was a version of that, honestly, because there were no paparazzi and there was no secret little tricky cellphone pictures being taken. It was just this great community and these amazing people."

Maybe getting into the hippie spirit of the film's premise helped, but Aniston says she ended up learning a lot about herself just by the change of environment. "For me, I really realized how walled I was, and not consciously so, but just this armour that I kind of have, protective armour from — not my friends or people in my family, but just being outside in the world, always on guard or whatever," she says. "There's just this sigh of relief after week one just knowing, oh this is like John Travolta in the Boy in the Bubble. It was like, riding on a horse, out of the bubble!"

The image she's conjured reduces her to a fit of laughter, but there was a serious sense of self-improvement for Aniston to take away from the Wanderlust production. "It was special,

Other career choices

► What would the Wanderlust star be doing if she wanted to run away from acting? "Well, there was the period where I wanted to be a therapist if the acting thing didn't work," she says. "I was always the girl that people would come to and talk about their problems. Still am."

it was really special ... to kind of get back in touch with that part of myself and that anonymity," she says. "I really made a conscious effort to know, 'Don't wall up like that.' I think you kind of miss out on a lot of stuff if you're so protected and isolated, in a way."

► Paul Rudd and Jennifer Aniston star in Wanderlust.

Wain talks free lovin'

With Wanderlust, director and co-writer David Wain sends a pair of Manhattanites down the communal living rabbit hole as they decide to move into an "intentional living" community led by a cult-ish womanizer (Justin Theroux). Metro chatted with Wain about the film.

Why do you think hippies continue to be such a great source for comedy?

We all have sort of a fantasy of being that, you know? We all think like, what if we could just walk away from conventional life — and just relax and focus on enjoying every moment instead of doing whatever the f— we do.

You're dealing with a good deal of sexual humour. How much do you worry about ratings and the MPAA?

Well, with Rated R you can do most anything, and usually if it's going to be too hard for an R then it's not that interesting to me. I don't necessarily want to show. I guess basically the other answer is I've never had an issue with them. All four movies I've done have been rated R, and ... none of them have come back and said, "Take something out." NED EHRBAR

Lohan's career back on track?

It's been a good week for Lindsay Lohan, career-wise.

First, it was announced she'll be hosting Saturday Night Live again on March 3, and now sources say that the troubled actress has been confirmed to play Elizabeth Taylor in a Lifetime television movie about the screen icon, according to Hollyscoop.

The film, Liz and Dick, will focus on Taylor's relationship with Richard Burton.

A source says that as long as Lindsay stays out of trouble and fulfills all the obligations of her probation, the job is hers.

In an interview on The Howard Stern Show on Tuesday, The Voice coach Adam Levine proved himself to be smart about a few topics.

Stern tried to get Levine to gossip about fellow mentor/judge Christina Aguilera's recent weight gain.

"Why do you think she's gotten so heavy? Is she upset?" Stern prodded.

"She used to be so (expletive) hot ... And her clothes are too tight,

"When you're a plus-size woman, you can't wear the tight clothes anymore."

Levine responded diplomatically, stating: "I wouldn't go that far, actually."

And when Stern pushed the point, asking what size Aguilera is, the musician-turned-reality star wisely shut Stern down: "I'm keeping my (expletive) mouth shut."

Smart of him, right? Then the topic veered to Levine's Russian model girlfriend, Anne V.

"This is the longest, most functional relationship I've ever been in, I don't want to screw it up," he said.

Update on Houston's drug intake

A new report looks to confirm that Whitney Houston's death earlier this month was caused by a mixture of alcohol and prescription drugs, according to Radar Online.

"Whitney had taken Valium, Xanax and alcohol, which led to her death. The coroner is waiting on final toxicology results to determine which one of the three was the major contributing factor of her demise," a source says.

► Whitney Houston

"The coroner will be closely examining Whitney's blood alcohol content at the time she died as well. The sedatives and alcohol will almost certainly be the cause of death, and not drowning. Her heart stopped beating because her respiratory system was suppressed because of the anti-anxiety meds, and combined with the booze it probably happened very quickly before she was found partially submerged in the bathtub."

► How Christopher Kane, McQ and Acne sold us on fall's most ubiquitous colour

Burgundy is anything but bland

KENYA HUNT
LIFE@METRONews.ca
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

As far as colours go, burgundy is a pretty lackluster follow-up to all the pops of yellow we saw for spring.

That age-old mix of red and brown brings to mind '80s corduroy, Avon lipstick and micro-suede couches sold at a deep discount in suburban furniture warehouses. Hardly something women would clamour to wear.

Simply put, the maroon parade that marched its way through New York was kind of a let down.

Then the London shows came along and things started to change.

In Christopher Kane's hands, the shade became sexually charged, Gothic and a little dangerous on his leather-trimmed dresses, padded coats and cigarette trousers.

Kane used a shade that more so resembled freshly drawn blood than living room curtains with a techie, moiré fabric that changed tones as the models moved. And that's exactly what made it so memorable.

Memories of summer...

► While you long for warmer days, try these ice-cream-inspired treats

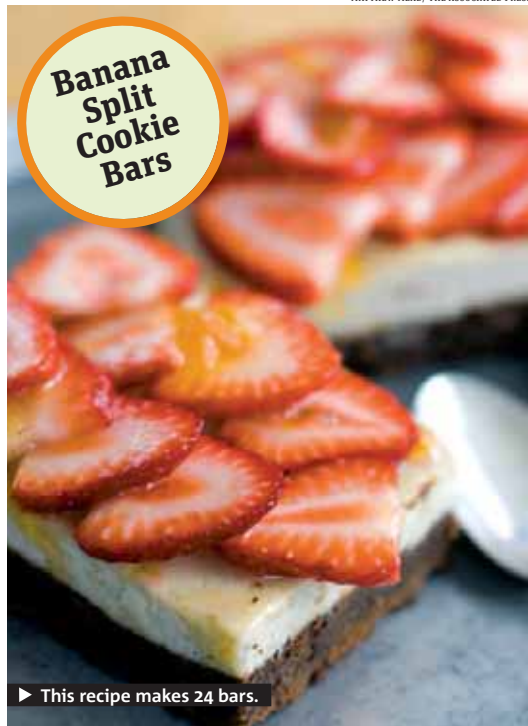

Taking inspiration from the traditional banana split, here is a cookie combining many flavours into a rich cheesecake bar.

The recipe starts with a base of brownie and topped with a creamy banana cheesecake layer. To finish it off, it is layered with fresh cut strawberries and a thin layer of pineapple jam.

If you'd like, you can add a sprinkle of toasted chopped nuts to garnish.

Banana Split Cookie Bars

- 1 Heat the oven to 180 C (350 F). Coat a 23-by-33-cm (9-by-13-inch) baking pan with cooking spray.
- 2 In a microwave-safe bowl, heat the chocolate bits and butter on high for 1 to 2 minutes, stirring every 20 seconds, or until melted. Set aside.
- 3 In bowl, whisk sugar, flour and salt. Add eggs and vanilla and whisk until smooth. Stir in the chocolate-butter mix. Pour into prepared pan and bake 20 minutes. Remove pan from oven. If there are any bubbles in the crust, gently push them flat. Leave oven on.

combine the cream cheese, bananas, sugar, flour and salt. Process until completely smooth, scraping down the sides of the bowl. Add the eggs, one at a time, processing and scraping the bowl between additions. Pour the batter over the brownie crust and bake for 20 to 25 minutes, or until the centre no longer jiggles. Cool, then refrigerate until completely chilled.

- 5 When cheesecake completely chilled, arrange sliced strawberries over the top. In microwave-safe bowl, mix pineapple jam and the 1 tablespoon of water. Microwave until

Powerful Punch

► Scotland's BrewDog smashes through with Sink The Bismarck

JEFF O'REILLY

"Work it harder. Make it better. Do it faster. Makes us stronger. More than ever. Hour after. Our work is never over."

— Daft Punk

Record holder

► Germany's Schorschbräu brewery's Schorschbock 57, weighing in at 57.5 per cent ABV, is the current "strongest beer of the world," but I wouldn't be surprised if BrewDog ups the ante again ... and soon.

Man has always been driven in the pursuit to be all they can be, and the competitive spirit that compels us to greatness is alive and well in the beer industry as brewers continue to try to outdo each other.

With most of our everyday beers sitting somewhere between four to six per cent alcohol by volume (ABV), the Swiss-brewed Samichlaus had been listed in the Guinness World Records as the strongest beer in the world for ages at 14 per cent ABV, and everybody seemed to be fine with that — for a while.

But then a number of brewers decided it was time to turn the volume up to 11 and people took notice. By experimenting with ingredients like champagne yeasts to drive up alcohol content, American brewing icons Samuel Adams were able to push ABVs up into the 20s with Millennium and Utopia, but the wildest and most creative efforts came from rebellious Scottish craft brewer BrewDog as it simply threw conventional practices to the wayside and rewrote the rulebook.

Driven to completely smash the existing limits, BrewDog began releasing brands like the Tactical Nuclear Penguin Imperial Stout at 32 per cent ABV and Sink The Bismarck India Pale Ale at 42 per cent ABV before producing only a dozen bottles of End Of History — a whopping 55 per cent ABV Strong Belgian Ale, which saw these rare bottles packaged in stuffed dead squirrels and selling for up to 700 pounds per bottle. It raised more than a few eyebrows, but gave them worldwide attention, not only for the extreme and unusual marketing techniques, but also for the liquids BrewDog was creating.

By employing a fractional freezing technique used in Eisbocks, they freeze the beer and remove the ice until they have reached their desired alcohol level (which seems to continue to climb, as does the price tag). With a combination of high expectation and nervous anticipation I am ready to expose my palate to one of the world's strongest beers.

Sink The Bismarck IPA is quadruple hopped and frozen four times and the results of this painstaking procedure are magnificent.

Pouring a beautiful, deep burnished orange colour with only the slightest hint of head, this beer clings to the glass with legs for miles. The nose is intense and intoxicating — sharp and refined before releasing compelling tastes of burnt sugar, caramel and molasses sweetness up front before big boozy tingles sting the tongue. Huge raisin and fig flavours arise with subtle hints of anise, citrus, smoke, wood and resin in a thick, pleasantly sticky mouth feel that warms the cheeks, tongue and chest.

Comparisons to cognac and tawny ports are likely comparisons to other beers, but make no mistake, this is definitely a powerhouse brew — one that should be shared amongst friends for a special occasion as it is a deadly combination of lethal and delicious.

Sink The Bismarck is available at Pub Italia for $159.99 (that's right, one hundred and sixty bucks) before tax and tip ... for a 375 ml bottle in its very well stocked Abbey beer cellar.

It's worth every penny.

It's no mistake the word "genuine" is in its name — genuinely excellent food, service and intimate dining is what you will get at John Taylor's Genuine Food & Wine Bar.

Regional and highly seasonal ingredients inspire the menu, as at sister restaurant Domus Café. Located across from the Mayfair Theatre, the space is small yet elegant with long booths and a few nooks for larger parties.

Upon first bite of our charcuterie it wasn't surprising to learn that all terrines and smoked fish were made in-house. The maple foie gras had hints with slivers of apple and sweet vinaigrette. Similarly, the mushroom soup was mild at first, but with chunks of cured bacon and spiked with truffle oil it became a gourmand's dream.

Though there were only a few plump potato gnocci, the Digby scallops were phenomenal — perfectly caramelized on top and generous in size. A gingery carrot and bacon sauce complemented the meatiness of the scallop.

This is one of the few restaurants where both meat eaters and vegans can enjoy fine dining. The tofu in the vegetarian cassoulet was expertly fried and richly flavoured. It was paired deliciously with smoky white beans and roasted Brussels sprouts and parsnip pieces by chefs that clearly understand vegetarian cuisine in the exposed kitchen.

Family farms are here to stay

FORK

Are you one of those folks who is concerned that factory farms managed from boardrooms have taken over the food production industry, destroyed traditional family farming and have left rural North America virtually deserted?

If so, you can relax — their importance is very much overstated. According to the United States Department of Agriculture, only one farm in 200 is a so-called "corporate farm," while the rest are mostly family farms of which a half are less than 100 acres. Yes, corporate factory farms tend to be larger than average, but family farms still produce an overwhelming 85 per cent of all food in the U.S., where a lot of our groceries originate.

The Canadian situation is very similar. Furthermore, the only area where factory farms have any real presence is in the production of eggs, poultry, pork, beef and, to some extent, dairy products.

As to factory farms depleting the rural population, this too is far from the truth. According to the recently released census, the rural population in Canada actually grew between 2006 and 2007.

One surprising development in the U.S. is the fact that the number of farms managed by women has doubled in recent years and now stands at 10 per cent of the total. In other words, for every factory farm with a corporate style of management, there are 20 family farms run by a woman.

While some may not be pleased with the fact that so-called factory farms play any role in our food supply, their place in the overall scheme of things is quite modest.

► Lemon Fetish can beat the blahs

CURD ON THE STREET

February is a ho-hum time of year and so my cheese pick this week, Lemon Fetish, is the perfect curd choice to beat off the blahs and replace them with a little bit of zing and zest.

Hailing from Prince Edward County, Fifth Town Artisan Cheese Co.'s littlest cheese family member is one of more than 20 varieties of sheep, goat and cow milk cheeses.

A pretty package,

► Lemon Fetish cheese.

Lemon Fetish is an un-ripened, feta-style sheep's milk cheese made from Local Food Plus milk producers, and shaped in small, round wheels weighing in at only 100 grams, but delivering a huge impression.

Rollled in Red Fife wheat and lemon zest, the paste (inside of the cheese) has a dry, crumbly texture. Enjoy citrus and sour cream notes, and fresh, clean, tangy and salty flavours. A little goes a long way thinly sliced over mixed greens, to garnish a gourmet vegetable quiche or anywhere you would use traditional feta cheese.

FOR METRO

Born out of the ashes of Sweetgrass Bistro, The Smoque Shack has created a new place in the hearts of barbecue and meat lovers across this city. The ox skull that hangs on the wall gives diners the clear idea: This is where meat is worshipped.

Only open since December, The Smoque Shack has set itself up for the hockey game hangout. The converted house is large and looks like a sports bar with flatscreen TVs, wooden booths and flooded with natural light.

The way the menu works is that you order your proteins first and then choose from a mix of traditional southern sides like collard greens with pork rinds, baked beans with smoky bites of bacon and brisket, or baked home-style macaroni and cheese. Serving them family-style is part of the fun.

The campfire-like flavour gained from smoking the meats over coals or maple hardwood gives a darkened crust on the meats (beef, chicken or ribs). But they are not just serving up typical southern-style brisket; those are traditional Montreal smoked meat spices in that Texas sandwich. The pulled pork melts in your mouth with coffee-barbecue sauce, but luckily you can mop it up with their moist cornbread side.

And that's genuine Jamaican jerk sauce on the pork shoulder. Definitely getting a kick from some Scotch bonnet peppers, the hotness is well-honed so you can taste flavours from the allspice and cinnamon. When you are gnawing away, check out the ring on the bone created from the smoking process that can take up to 12 hours.

The selection of beers like Kichesippi and Beau's are just the ticket for washing down all of that meat.

Soon enough you will be dreaming of being in the heart of Texas, but in the meantime, hit up The Smoque Shack for the next best thing.

Q. I am a renter and plan to stay in my place for three to five years. I'd like to paint the outdated oak cupboards in my small kitchen. Any suggestions on colour?

A. Small kitchens tend to look their best when treated with a monochromatic colour scheme; meaning that all the finishes in the small space are similar in colour and tone.

If you are not investing in a new countertop or backsplash then find your inspiration for a paint colour from the existing elements that you will not be changing.

For instance, if you have a grey speckled countertop choose a grey paint colour and other grey elements for the kitchen. One of my favourites is Benjamin Moore's Escarpment CC-518.

Paint everything in the kitchen the same colour; the cupboards will be painted in a gloss oil paint, the walls in a flat latex and the backsplash can be painted with a melamine paint for durability.

For a professional, smooth paint finish consider sending the cupboard doors and drawers out to be sprayed.

Kitchen karma

Here are a few other inexpensive ideas for sprucing up your kitchen.

- Baby got backsplash: Use peel-and-stick floor tile as a backsplash. Choose a matte, textured finish that resembles stone or marble. It's durable and easily removed by the next tenant if they want a new look.
- Tickle your faucet fancy: Replace your faucet; it's like jewelry for the kitchen. Splashy styles can be found at big box stores for inexpensive prices.
- Hide-and-seek: Use invisible knobs, which cost less than a dollar each and help to give a streamlined look to cupboard doors and drawers.

- Work some industrial magic: Install outdoor-style lighting to help give your kitchen a hip industrial look.

Dear Charles the butler,
I have a very dirty microfibre couch and no idea how to clean it. The instructions said dish soap/water, but that just leaves a water stain, which looks worse.

Thanks,
Trevor

Dear Trevor,
You are absolutely correct. Generally when you treat a single stain in a specific location you run a high risk of creating a different spot.

This new spot is the "treated" area and it becomes a different colour from the rest of the fabric that hasn't been treated.

So often "spot" cleaning can be very tricky if you are not a professional. Remember that professionals bring years of experience and often are worth the investment. In order to correctly remove a stain, you must know what the stain is so that you can use the correct treatment for best results.

Usually for a piece of upholstered fabric you need to treat then clean either the entire cushion or the entire couch. I have absolutely no connection with Bissell but I have used their Portable Deep Cleaner with great success. This has worked for me to clean both an individual stain and the entire chair or couch.

One final note, don't let items get too dirty. The dirtier an item, the harder it is to clean, and testing your cleaning product/technique somewhere where it will not be seen is always a good idea!

Erik Karlsson and Milan Michalek each had three points Wednesday as the Ottawa Senators defeated the Washington Capitals 5-2.

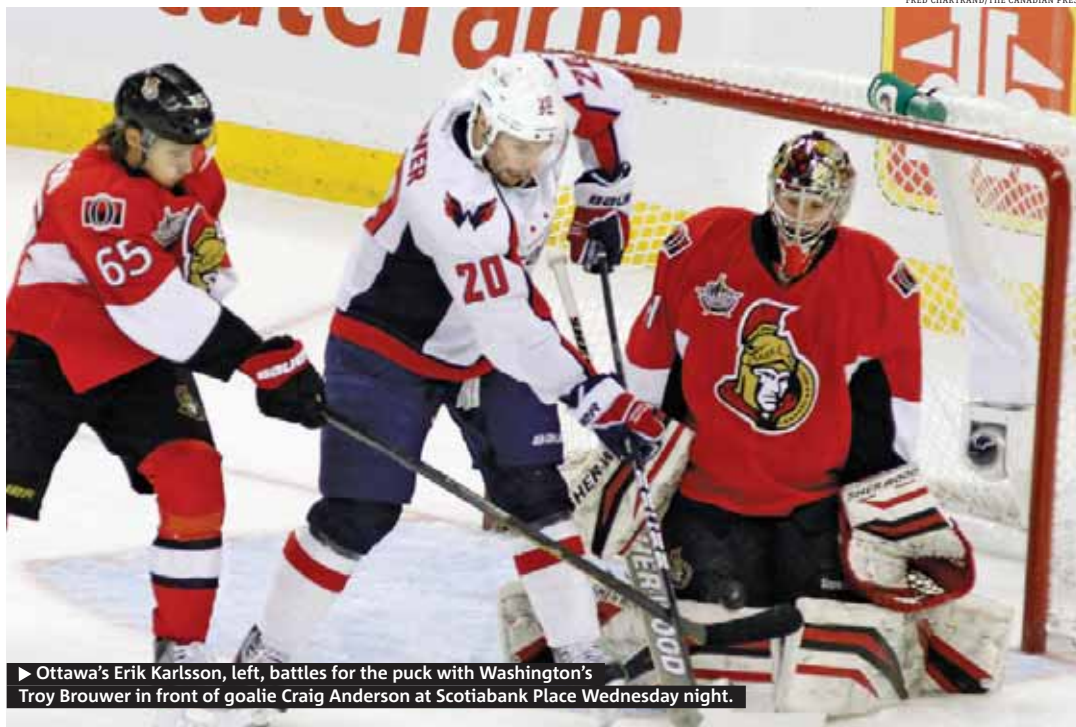

Karlsson finished with a goal and two assists to set a new franchise record for assists by a defenceman in a season with 47.

The 21-year-old has seven points in his last two games. His 60 points on the season give him a 20-point lead on Florida's Brian Campbell for the NHL lead in scoring by a defenceman.

Michalek added two goals and an assist, while Chris Phillips, with his fourth goal in six games, also scored for Ottawa (32-22-8). Nick Foligno, with his first goal in 19 games, scored in to an empty net.

Santos, Cordero solidify back of Jays' bullpen

Toronto Blue Jays manager John Farrell has one less decision to make this season.

He knew before spring training even started how the back of the Blue Jays' bullpen would look: Sergio Santos will be his closer and Francisco Cordero the setup man.

The starting rotation? He's far less certain about that.

Coming into camp, Farrell envisions a starting rotation of Ricky Romero, Brandon Morrow, Brett Cecil, Henderson Alvarez and Dustin McGowan. But he said, "that doesn't mean that starters Kyle Drabek, Aaron Laffey, guys that are in camp here, (don't) have an opportunity to make this club."

Farrell added: "We're also looking forward to the exposure that (minor league prospects Drew) Hutchison, (Chad) Jenkins, (Deck) McGuire are going to get to make an impression."

The Blue Jays acquired Santos in a trade with the White Sox after he saved 30 games in his first season as closer for Chicago and second in the big leagues over all. Cordero had 37 saves for Cincinnati in 2011 but he signed a one-year, $4.5 million free agent contract to pitch the eighth inning for the Blue Jays.

"When you look at the acquisition of Sergio, he gives us that one guy to really go back to that's a little more clear cut today going into 2012," Farrell said Wednesday after half the Blue Jays' pitchers went through their first workout. The other half will do it Thursday.

"Nothing against the group that was here a year ago, but it's just a more defined closer to let everyone slot in prior to getting to him," Farrell said about Frank Francisco, who had 17 of Toronto's 33 saves, and Jon Rauch (11).

The setup man doesn't have the cachet that goes with being a closer. But Farrell said baseball people who have worked with Cordero call him "a complete team player. And the fact that he's been a very good closer in his career (327 saves, 3.17 ERA over 13 seasons), he knew the situation he was coming into."

"He's accepting of that eighth-inning role and I think that speaks more about him as a person," Farrell said. "You can look at the numbers and clearly see the success he's had late in the game."

South Beach sizzles ahead of Lin's arrival

► NBA fans abuzz as star-studded Heat prepare to host Knicks sensation

The hottest team versus the hottest story.

Linsanity is on its way to Miami, and the Heat can finally say they're eager for the arrival.

It may be the NBA's marquee matchup so far this season, the phenomenon that is New York Knicks guard Jeremy Lin taking centre stage in Miami on Thursday against the NBA-leading Heat in both sides' finale before the All-Star break. Online ticket brokers reported early Wednesday that the average price of a seat on the resale markets is about $600. Unless you want courtside seats, that is. They run about $8,000 each.

"It's not about Jeremy Lin versus LeBron James,"

"It could be one of the most watched games we've had in a long time, especially with what Jeremy Lin is doing."

LEBRON JAMES

Heat guard Dwyane Wade said. "It's the Miami Heat versus the New York Knicks."

But the Lin story has already seemed to crank the intensity of the rivalry up several more notches. Some Heat players and coaches have been getting asked about this matchup for more than a week already.

Entering Wednesday's game against Atlanta, New York was 8-2 with Lin in the rotation, and he's averaging 24.6 points and 9.2 assists in that stretch.

"The kid deserves it, he's worked hard, he's a great story," Wade said. "But for us, it's another game — a big game — and a chance to get a win."

My Beautiful Children I wanted to take a moment to tell you all how much I love you! You have given me the best 18+ years of my life and I wouldn't trade it for anything! You are all turning out to be smart, honest, and beautiful/handsome. I <3 watching you grow up and develop your own personalities. Never let the "little" people keep you down. If you want something, go for it. I know you can do it. :) <3 YOUR MOM

You, I really thought you were the perfect one for me. Everything really clicked, or at least I thought it did. I guess I'm just prone to getting hurt way too much. No matter what girl you find now, I'll always love you a lot. Just because you never felt the same way, doesn't mean it'll change how I feel. You're really a great guy, I hope you know that.
